

Race Riders Quote Sheet Compiled After Stage 2

Katie Hall, UnitedHealthcare Pro Cycling Team – “Boels-Dolmans did a great job setting the pace on the climb....We (Anna van der Breggen) went over the top together, and I got attacked at the bottom of the descent, and was able to pull her back in the final kilometer.”

Katie Hall, UnitedHealthcare Pro Cycling Team – “I have some teammates who are really good at suffering, and are teaching me how to suffer, and I had them in my ear saying ‘Suffer! You can do this! Go, go, go!’ That encouraged me to dig as deep as I could and pull her (Anna van der Breggen) back in the last kilometer.”

Anna van der Breggen, Boels-Dolmans Cycling Team – “A climb of 15 kilometers is something different than we’ve done before....The team did great to make a good pace, and when Katie attacked we had to follow. I just had to stick on her wheel.”

Anna van der Breggen, Boels-Dolmans Cycling Team – (On communication between her teammate Megan Guarnier today) “If someone attacks you have to follow, but it’s different on a long climb like this...Megan is getting back in shape again, and she did really good coming in the group behind us.”

Ruth Winder, UnitedHealthcare Pro Cycling Team – (On protecting Katie’s lead) “I’m still coming into my own. I’m learning what it is I’m really good at, but I think I can be of help on the flats.”

About the Amgen Breakaway from Heart Disease™ Women's Race empowered with SRAM

From May 11-14 the Amgen Breakaway from Heart Disease™ Women's Race empowered with SRAM will visit South Lake Tahoe and Elk Grove before concluding in Sacramento. More information is available at amgentourofcalifornia.com.